

CONSTANT GOD - Whatever the thought, the deed, the possibility - there is God, always there, knowing our thought and awaiting our request for His insight.

Once upon a time,

. . . music played in public was sterile. Nothing was heard that hinted of violence, sex, or profanity. Perhaps it was motivated by smart businesses interests of that time -- no need to insult, anger, or demean potential customers.

It's not for certain whether customers were different back then or whether businesses have just grown not to care about offending customers. But things have changed.

Did the attitude of business persons as displayed in the music broadcast in public spaces serve to change the public? Or did a slow and continuous change in the public result in the change in business attitudes.

But regardless, here we are. We as a people vote our preferences daily, hourly, by the minute and second in the choices we make. Simple choices compounded over time have great impact on what we think and who we are and have become. The selection of television shows or even the choice to watch television, which appears to celebrate with daily programming openly in opposition to Jesus Christ.

Perhaps this trend started as merely a way to be different and grow ratings with young, immature audiences in search of the new and different. Those immature audiences eventually grow into Nielsen households shaping the future of television and societal in the process.

We are so accustomed to being programmed by others, although we don't call it that. Our music, the branding of our clothing, our constant connectivity to external forces by wireless phones and the internet. We have been taught to see it all these devices as tools of empowerment. But they are not.

So, what are we to do? We shall talk of better things, confessing we are with God and He with us, that we are surrounded by His power and love and goodness and that there is no power that can overcome us. And we praise Him who is great and wonderful and is all.

Philippians 4:8 ^(NKJV) 8 Finally, brethren, whatever things are true, whatever things are noble, whatever things are just, whatever things are pure, whatever things are lovely, whatever things are of good report, if there is any virtue and if there is anything praiseworthy--meditate on these things.

Psalm 67:5-6 ^(NKJV) 5 Let the peoples praise You, O God; Let all the peoples praise You. 6 Then the earth shall yield her increase; God, our own God, shall bless us.
